THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. Roadblocks were erected during the month of April on various major roads leading east from Gdansk (Danzig) through the Wielkie Zulawy Malborskie (Great Lowlands of Malbork). Each roadblock is manned by two soldiers, one from the army, and one from the WOP (Border Security Guard); these men check all vehicles and their passengers, with the exception of Polish and Soviet military vehicles. On these blocked-off roads, a much larger volume of military vehicle traffic has been observed; greater than, for example, traffic during March 1952.

2. As a rule, few Soviet troops or units are to be seen in the Gdansk area.  there are, however, numerous Soviet units in the eastern sections of the province of Olsztyn (Allenstein), particularly between Pisz (Johannisburg - R 54/A 54) and the Soviet border, as well as around the Masurian Lakes.
